THE HOME

The HOME collection

The HOME collection is a song with many voices. The voices of designers, artisans, craftsmanship and materials. Voices that together create the choir that make the designs come alive. The collection roots in a fascination of the materials themselves and how we as artisans and designers can keep extending boundaries while keeping to the core of these materials.

The designs honours ancestral traditions emphasising the intimacy of the handmade where each design differ with the hand that created it.

The design process unfolds through close collaboration between the design team and the artisans, based on field research and experimentation.

The result is a contemporary yet timeless expression, where Scandinavian design tradition meets African craftsmanship.

The people

The heart of BYHAA lies in the hand of the artisans. Many come from family traditions where skills such as carving, weaving, dyeing and metalwork are passed down from one generation to the next . The company works with artisan families, urban refugees, marginalised communities and cooperatives, cultivating both resilience and fairness within these communities.

We are nature

Every creation grows from a point of respect for people, materials, and the natural environment. BYHAA's philosophy emphasises using materials consciously: acknowledging that we are all nature and the future is formed by the hands working with and within nature today. By valuing the imperfections and uniqueness of the material and the individual hand of the artisan, we want to celebrate the non-uniform as a part of nature.

The Future

By creating timeless, everlasting design, Byhand African Artisans encapsulates its vision for enduring craftsmanship, cultural preservation, and social responsibility. We aim to impact lives on multiple levels: uplifting artisans' livelihoods, preserving and developing family-based traditions by presenting local African heritage to the international markets with dignity through design. Each product embodies longevity – both in physical durability and in cultural significance. By merging Scandinavian design principles with African artisanship, BYHAA creates connections that transcend continents, building legacies that may last generations.
